

The Opportunity

MCMP Fuels Trading Global offers investors a unique chance to participate in the global shipping and trade finance industries. While both sectors have high barriers to entry, the company is built to unlock the value that industry insiders have historically kept to themselves. The investment is structured so that your principal is always fully secured by readily marketable assets, and offers both a preferred annual return and participation in the gross profits from all operations.

Uncorrelated to other asset classes, an investment in MCMP Fuels Trading Global is expected to offer outsized returns as compared to the listed markets. In fact our track record shows historic annual returns to our investors in the range of 16% to 20%, with cash distributions made quarterly. Equally important is the fact that investors are charged no fees, and their returns are paid prior to management receiving a single dime of compensation. This structure insures that the managers are doing their best to maximize your returns, and that 100% of your investment is always put to work for you. Complete information containing specific details is available upon request.

Management

MCMP Fuels Trading Global's operations are managed by Maritime Capital Management Partners LLC ("MCMP"). The principals of MCMP have many years of experience in the shipping industry, including all aspects of operations and financing. They bring a wealth of industry knowledge and business contacts to MCMP Fuels Trading Global investors.

The Company

MCMP Fuels Trading Global, LLC is in the business of creating attractive return streams for its investors through the acquisition of commercial vessels and the financing of various commercial cargos. The company gives investors the opportunity to participate in an industry with unusually high barriers to entry by providing its experience and existing relationships to enable investors an entrée into the shipping business, without the risks of being a ship owner. MCMP Fuels Trading Global targets opportunities in a wide variety of geographies, making it truly a global investment for our investors.

The Industry

Shipping, despite being largely invisible to the general public, has consistently grown as an industry during the last fifty years. During that time, the growth rate of international trade was almost consistently twice that of economic activity as a whole. Approximately 90% of world trade travels by sea at some point in a product's life cycle and it is difficult to imagine any practical transportation alternatives. The ability of ships to carry enormous tonnages sets them apart as the most energy efficient method of moving goods.

Commercial Vessels

MCMP Fuels Trading Global is focused on the handy size tanker market, which represents the smaller end of the tanker market. It is primarily interested in vessels that range from 2,500 Dead Weight Tonnage (DWT) up to 10,000 DWT that transport refined petroleum products. However, other opportunistic markets may be selected in different sectors of the shipping business, including bulk carriers at similar or other tonnages, if the Manager feels it is in the best interest of the investors to do so.

Trade Finance

MCMP Fuels Trading Global has identified suppliers, refiners and end-buyers of various cargos. As a result of the geographic realities of the regions in which the company operates, the transport times are relatively short, and will generally be 30 days or fewer in duration, depending upon the loading and discharge points; therefore, the investor capital will turn over fairly rapidly.

Security

Investor funds are always fully secured by a first position on all the assets owned by the LLC. These assets include the cargoes carried on our ships, and the ships themselves. We always have contracted sellers and buyers of any cargo transported, so our profit margins are known before we commit to a transaction. All transactions are based in U.S. Dollars, and are done only with trading partners that are well known to us, and have been fully vetted by our U.S. based legal counsel to insure compliance with all U.S.A. rules and regulations.

Geography

MCMP Fuels Trading Global targets shipping and trading opportunities in the Persian Gulf, South America, U.S.A., and other strategic geographies around the globe. The dual management structure, with operations based in both Chicago, IL and Athens, Greece means that the company is able to leverage well-established relationships worldwide to deliver attractive returns to investors.
